Toronto, December 10, 2009 – Systemware Innovation (SWI) is pleased to announce their registration as a Wonderware Integrator (See www.wonderware.com). Wonderware System Integrators (SIs) are relied upon to integrate and support products such as the Wonderware InTouch HMI, based on the ArchestrA technology. Through this offering, SWI is able to help customers achieve breakthrough performance.

Wonderware InTouch software provides rich graphic visualization for a client's operations management, control and optimization. The InTouch HMI has a reputation for industry leading innovation, architectural integrity, device integration and connectivity, uninterrupted software version migration path, and ease of use. This software enables users to become more productive and creative, while reducing costs.

“Wonderware provides another tool that our clients can use to quickly implement their process control requirements. Being an integrator allows us to help those clients take full advantage of this exciting technology,” said Jeff McDougall, VP Professional Services.

According to Invensys Wonderware, “Only those SIs with proven technical excellence, customer service and integrity participate in our Endorsed and Certified SI programs, and we maintain strong relationships with them so that they are knowledgeable about upcoming product releases, support updates and other information critical to the success of your projects.”
